

Bachelor Blogger

Chronicling his dating disasters on a weblog, Everything Is Wrong with Me, this e-diarist is as close to popular as he's ever been, receiving 10,000 hits a day. Here's an excerpt from jasonmulgrew.com

JASON MULGREW

AGE: 25 HOME: New York City
DAY JOB: Marketing analyst
WHY BLOG? "I'm better in print than in person." DO THE LADIES LIKE THE BLOG? "I actually get asked out a lot. Women in the Midwest want to marry me!"

Jason Mulgrew, Inte

http://www.jasonmulgrew.com/content/blog\_archive.php?bid=399

Home Everything Is Wrong With Me Archives About Me Choice Cuts

This weekend I did something interesting. I went to a wedding. Here's the twist: I went as someone's date.

A few weeks ago, I was out with Abby and some friends. I was going on and on about A) how much I love weddings and B) how great a date I am. (I dance; I'm good with strangers and old people; I get loaded, etc.) Unbeknownst to me, Abby had a wedding to go to and as I ended my rant, she asked me to go to this wedding with her. Having a completely empty social calendar and unable to refuse an open bar, I agreed.

But I have to clear something up. Despite my better efforts, Abby and I were going strictly as friends.

When she first asked me, I immediately thought, "This girl wants me to go to a five-hour open bar with her and then we're staying in a hotel room. We are going to have a baby." Several times I thought about bribing the concierge to "mistakenly" put us in a room with one king bed instead of our reserved room with two beds. But I couldn't bring myself to pull the trigger. Crap. I am such a gentleman.

I understood Abby's position. It's nice to have someone to talk to and even slow dance with.

It was a good time and I believe I lived up to my billing as "the greatest wedding date ever."

I'm pretty sure if Abby's not already in love with me, she will be in a matter of days if not minutes.

So what have we learned?

-Open bars are great (duh).

-“Surf and turf” are the three most beautiful words in the English language.

-I really want to get married.

REBORN: GROOMING: MARIAM FOR ARTISTS BY TRACY/TONY PRINANO; STYLIST: MARLA DE FRANCO; PROP: JAROP; GROOMER AVAILABLE AT URBAN OUTITTERS; LOCATION: FAT BLACK PRESS; GAT: NINE